The California State University (CSU) Board of Trustees invites nominations and applications for the position of President of California State University, Fullerton (CSUF). Appointed by the CSU Board of Trustees and reporting to the CSU Chancellor, the next President must be an energetic leader and passionate advocate for CSUF. They will build upon the University’s existing strengths and relationships within Orange County, the region, and nationally to further its efforts in student success, teaching and scholarly excellence, and community engagement.

California State University, Fullerton
Founded in 1957 as the 12th campus of the now 23-campus California State University System, CSUF was first accredited by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges in 1961. An intellectual and cultural catalyst for Southern California and a driver of workforce and economic development, CSUF has become a comprehensive university that supports the success of a diverse student population through a wide range of transformational curricular and co-curricular programs. CSUF is a leader in its fundraising efforts and its most recent and first-ever comprehensive philanthropic campaign raised more than $270 million by its close in December 2022 – surpassing its initial goal of $175 million, making it the third largest completed campaign in the history of the CSU system.

CSUF is home to 2,283 faculty (804 tenured/tenure track, 1,399 lecturer, and 80 non-instructional faculty) and 1,875 staff. It is supported by an annual operating budget of $261 million. The University offers 119 degree programs, 55 undergraduate and 64 graduate programs (including doctorates in education and nursing practice), through its eight colleges: College of the Arts, College of Business and Economics, College of Communications, College of Education, College of Engineering and Computer Science, College of Health and Human Development, College of Humanities and Social Sciences, and College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics. CSUF is a leading institution in the CSU system, regularly having the largest enrollment among the 23 campuses. In fall 2022, 40,386 students enrolled at CSUF, including 5,147 graduate and postbaccalaureate students.

Designated as a Minority Serving Institution (MSI), a Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI), and an Asian American, Native American and Pacific Islander Serving Institution (AANAPISI), CSUF embraces a diverse student population with 50.2% Hispanic students and 52.7% underrepresented students. Within the last five years, CSUF has continued to develop and implement a wide range of student success strategies aimed at improving timely graduation and eliminating equity gaps. As a result, the 4-year graduation rate for first-time freshmen has increased from 29% to 39%, the 2-year graduation rate for undergraduate transfer students reached 37.7%, and the 3-year graduation rate for Master’s students has remained stable.
around 75% despite the COVID-19 pandemic. In 2022-23, CSUF awarded 9,065 Bachelor’s degrees, 1,538 Master’s degrees, and 83 Doctoral degrees, the last of which is the highest in the university’s history.

In 2021, in recognition of its commitment to supporting students, CSUF received the Seal of Excelencia from Excelencia in Education.

The recruitment and retention of highly qualified, diverse faculty and staff are critical goals for CSUF. With nearly 20% of faculty and over 40% of staff coming from underrepresented backgrounds, the University continues to pursue the goal of increasing faculty and staff diversity. In addition to their deep commitment to access and student success, faculty are engaged in highly impactful research, creative activity, and institutional projects that bolster CSUF’s educational and service mission. As a result, 2022-23 proved to be an extremely successful year for CSUF faculty including record-high submissions of $146.1 million for external funding and funded awards of $46.1 million. In addition to the newly established Undergraduate Research Opportunity Center (UROC), which focuses on increasing faculty-led undergraduate research, scholarship, and creative activities, faculty participate in a wide variety of Campus Centers and Institutes which address many research, service, and community needs.

Position Summary
Appointed by the CSU Board of Trustees and reporting to the CSU Chancellor, the President serves as the University’s chief executive officer responsible for setting the vision, strategy, and related institutional goals and objectives. The President oversees the University’s administration and operations and implements the policies and procedures adopted by the CSU system. The President, with their strong leadership team, will focus on achieving the University’s core mission to nurture and support students’ unique talents, diverse life experiences, and intellect through engaged teaching, learning, scholarship, research, and public service that support their overall success, well-being, and the greater good.
CSUF’s next President will be a community-oriented leader who will foster collaborative and effective relationships with students, faculty, staff, alumni, donors, business and community partners, legislative leaders, and other campus stakeholders. In doing so, the President will actively and authentically engage with campus colleagues and the community to support the educational mission of the University and spearhead its efforts in setting an ambitious trajectory for CSUF’s future.

Opportunities and Challenges
Building upon its existing momentum as a dynamic and innovative institution, CSUF’s future holds significant potential for continued success and the opportunity to accelerate the University’s upward trajectory and increase the positive impact on its students and the communities it serves. The next President will provide bold leadership in a number of critical areas including, but not limited to:

- Implementing the University’s Strategic Plan – CSUF recently announced its new five-year strategic plan, Fullerton Forward, driven by a vision for the future in which the institution serves as a model public university that cultivates leaders who drive innovation, systematic change, and collective well-being in local and global communities. In supporting and implementing Fullerton Forward, the President will serve at the vanguard of the effort to inspire internal and external stakeholders to focus their collective energy on this shared vision for excellence and maximize their contributions in realizing the University’s full potential.

- Securing New Resources – As evidenced by Fullerton Forward, CSUF’s campus community is driven by high aspirations for the future and the President will be responsible for leading efforts to secure additional financial support in a very competitive higher education environment. The President must be a strategic and entrepreneurial leader who will partner with the campus community and CSU System leaders to enhance existing and create new revenue streams relating to increased philanthropic activity, legislative engagement and advocacy, community partnerships, academic offerings, and research and creative activity to fund initiatives that will ensure the University’s continued success and contributes fully to CSUF’s upward trajectory.

- Community Engagement – CSUF has a long-standing tradition of serving as a focal point for community partnerships with local industry, non-profit organizations, community-based organizations, and governmental stakeholders committed to enriching the region’s social fabric. The President must be prepared to build upon the campus’ foundation in this area and expand its efforts with a focus on strengthening existing and creating new pathways for access to higher education, workforce development, and social mobility for the Orange County’s diverse communities.

- Supporting Diversity, Equity, Inclusion and Community Outreach – CSUF’s faculty, staff, and students have historically demonstrated a strong commitment to addressing diversity, equity, and inclusion. With this in mind, the next President must also possess a strong passion and demonstrated commitment to these tenets and partner with the campus community to enhance existing and identify new opportunities for creating an environment that promotes these ideals. The President must also be prepared to lead the conversation in how CSUF can leverage its history of success in achieving HSI and AANPISI status to further extend itself to those communities within the region that have not previously engaged with the campus and develop relationships with key stakeholders.

- Responding to Current Trends in Higher Education – CSUF’s next President must be a forward-thinking leader with a current understanding of the trends affecting higher education and an eye for future shifts on the horizon. The President must employ this knowledge to adapt the University’s strategic responses and resource allocation to enrollment, academic programming, research and creative activity, and student success related initiatives.

- Transitioning to a Post-COVID-19 Educational Environment – CSUF’s next President must be an innovative and entrepreneurial leader capable of guiding the University in a shifting higher educational and economic environment while maintaining the University’s commitment to student success. To do so, the President must bring an understanding of the various teaching modalities available in the post-COVID-19 world and how to leverage CSUF’s existing Information Technology infrastructure to enhance students’ educational experience. The President must be prepared to assess CSUF’s existing IT resources and aggressively address the need for investment to build the quality of the University’s instructional delivery methods, policies, and procedures to enhance the effectiveness of teaching.

- Increasing Organizational Effectiveness – CSUF’s next President will join an institution whose growth and continued evolution has created the opportunity to enhance communication and partnership between all academic and business units across campus. The President must be prepared to guide a deliberate and inclusive process with the intention of reducing redundancies and increasing efficiencies to better streamline university processes and increase organizational effectiveness. The President must be an active listener and engaged communicator throughout this process intended to harness the strengths and attributes of each campus unit while capitalizing on the University’s collective strength.

- Supporting Student Success – In leading an institution that is emerging as a national model for supporting student success through innovative high-impact educational and co-curricular experiences, CSUF’s next President must be dedicated to advancing the University’s activities in these areas. To further the campus’ work toward these important goals, the President must serve as a visible and vocal leader on campus who demonstrates an enthusiasm for and personal commitment to partnering with faculty, staff, and students to maintain student success as a central pillar of the CSUF experience.
Leading CSUF into a New Social and Higher Education Landscape – Like many universities across the nation, CSUF has emerged from a period of great challenges encompassing a global pandemic, economic fluctuation, and civil and political change. CSUF’s next President must lead the institution as it strives to meet the needs and expectations of an increasingly diverse student body while preparing students for success beyond graduation in a world that has undergone tremendous change in recent years. CSUF’s next President must serve as a unifying force amongst its constituencies and foster an environment that builds and strengthens the institutional esprit-de-corps. To do so, the President must collaborate with the campus community to develop a thoughtful and comprehensive vision for ensuring CSUF’s continued success as it leads its community into the future that recognizes and appreciates the diversity of viewpoints across its myriad stakeholder groups.

Qualities and Characteristics
In promoting CSUF’s commitment to its mission of improving the lives of those in it serves in Orange County and its diverse communities, the President is expected to demonstrate the following attributes, experiences, abilities, and skills:

- A passion and enthusiasm for CSUF’s mission and goals as demonstrated through a visionary, compassionate, and genuine leadership style;
- The willingness to work with faculty, staff, and students to collectively develop a path into the future in an environment of shared governance;
- A vibrant, energetic, and visible leader with a proven track record of establishing and nurturing strong relationships with community leaders and stakeholders;
